In today's world, punishments given to political prisoners are often controversial on both national and global levels. After considering some of the accepted methods of punishing a political prisoner today, compare and contrast one of today's methods to the chosen punishment decided upon for the main character in The Man in the Iron Mask. Are the punishments similar? Do you believe they are appropriate for the crime? Why or why not? Is it ever correct to order such punishment for another human being? Justify your opinion.
